

1. First you go to the twitter.com. And when you click on your account, you can see the button “Blocker”

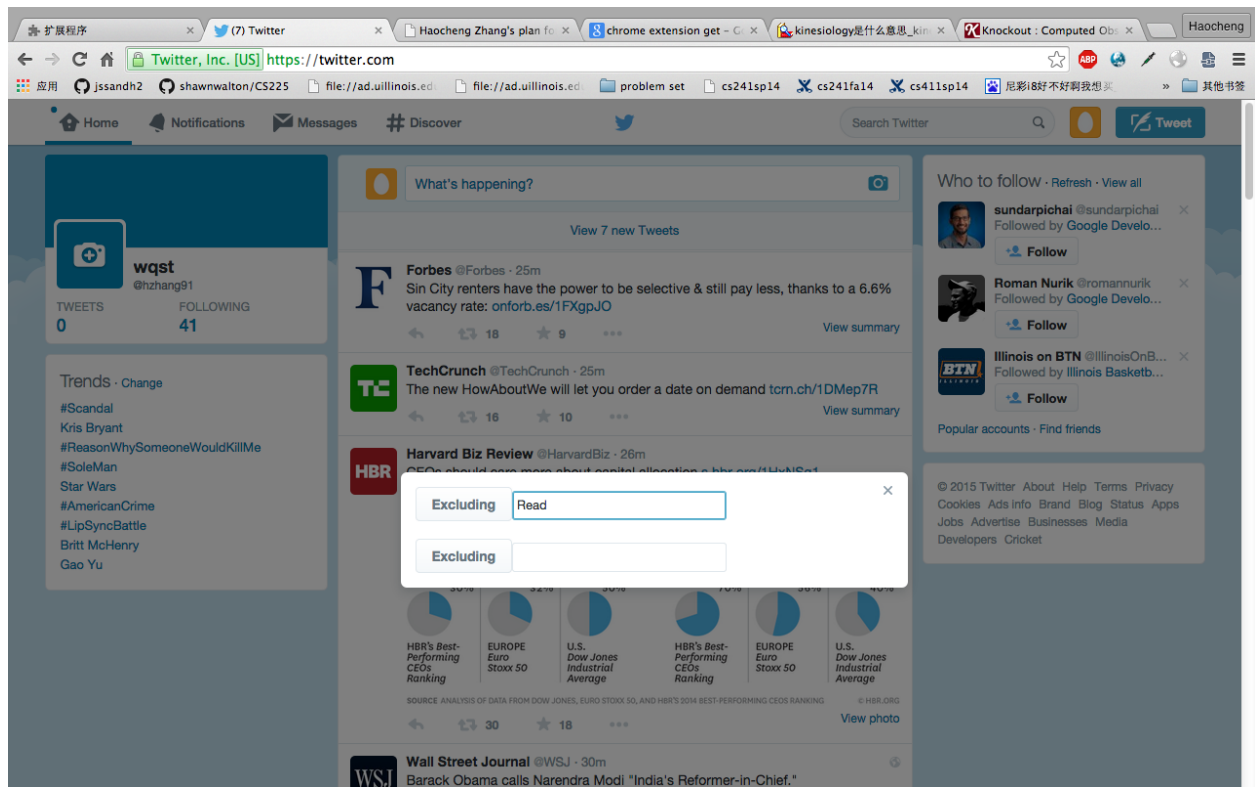

2. Click on it, and the user interface will appear. You can either choose “include” to display the tweets only contains certain keywords/authors or choose “exlcude” to block the tweets only contains certain keywords/authors. The above input block is for keyword, and the below one is for the authors.

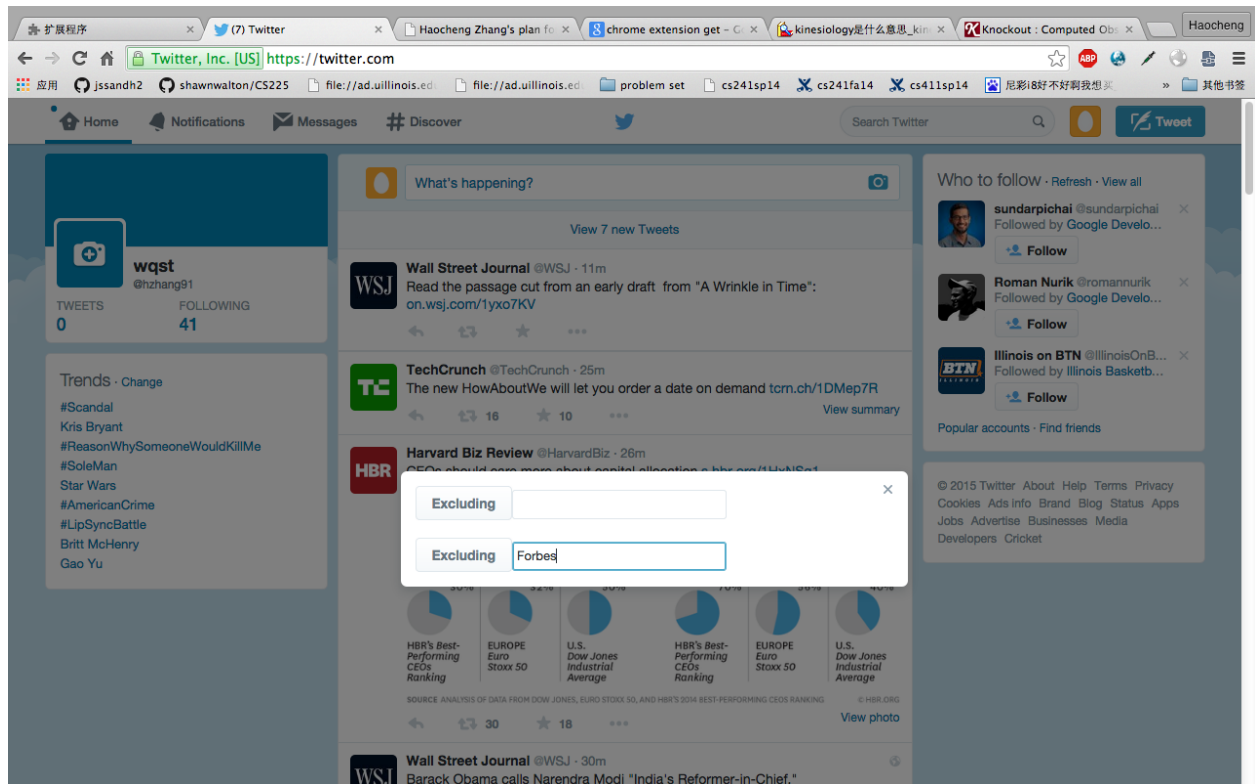

3. For instance, before we type “read” into the first block(choose “include” mode), we can see the tweets only contain “Read”.

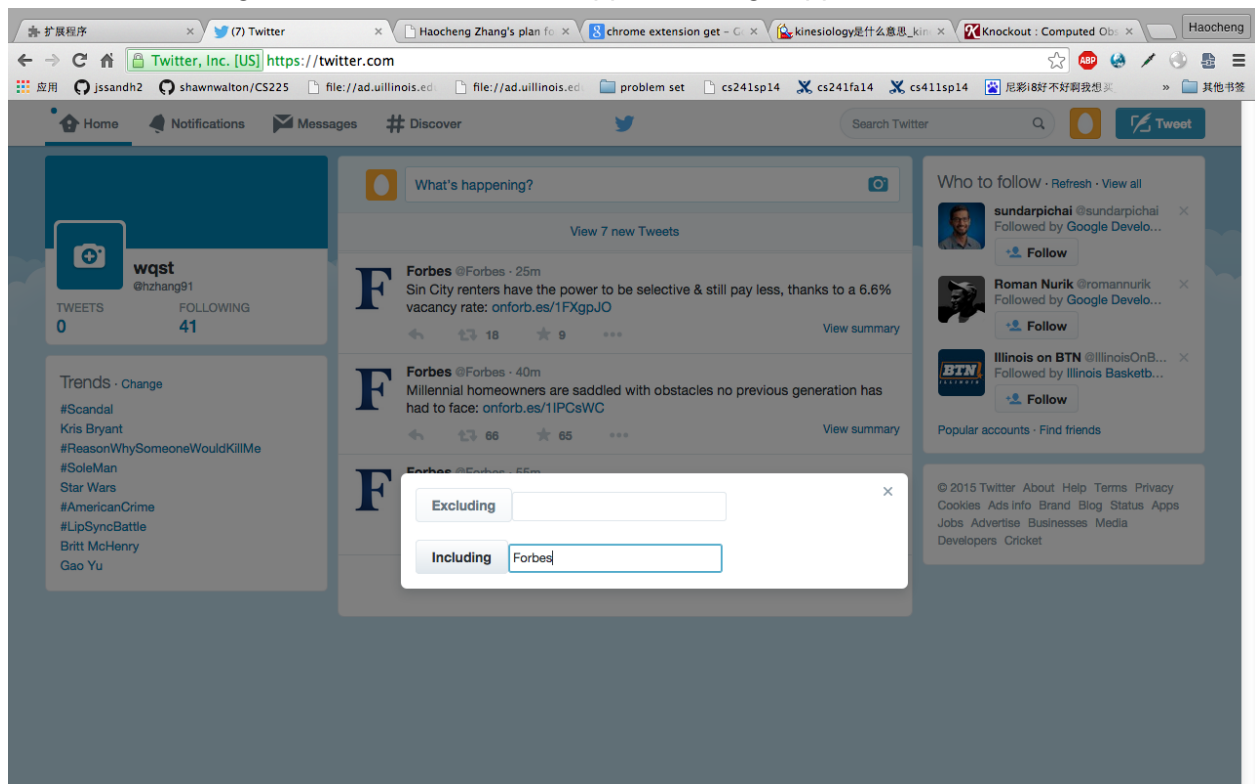

4. When we change to “exclude” mode, obviously the tweets related “read” have been blocked.

5. Similarly, when we choose “exclude” mode and then type “Forbes” into the author block, the tweets issued by “Forbes” have all been removed.

6. When we change to “include” mode, the opposite thing happen.

7. Finally, if you want to remove all the settings, just clear all the keywords you have typed. And the tweeter will return to the origin form.
